'I Won't Jump Again'

'A Nightmare,' Survivor Says Of Sky Mishap

HURON, Ohio (AP)—"It was really quite a nightmare," said Robert Coy, one of two known survivors of the worst sky diving accident in history.

"It still seems like a bad dream. Maybe it was, and I'll wake up pretty soon and find out it didn't happen."

Coy, from Springfield, Ohio, held onto a slim hope that some of his 14 fellow Ohio parachutists missing in Lake Erie would be found alive. Searchers continue dragging operations today for the 14 who fell into the lake Sunday.

But Coast Guard officials and others feared there was little chance they could survive this long in the murky waters. The National Safety Transportation Board took over the investigation of the accident.

Seventeen men and one woman—all expert divers—bailed out of a converted World War II bomber from 20,000 feet Sunday, not knowing they were over the lake.

Coy and Bernard Johnson, 30, West Richfield, survived. Bodies of Mrs. Alvin Lowmsbury, 26, and Doris Kitchen Jr., 33, both of Akron, were pulled out of the lake Sunday night.

"I won't jump again," Coy vowed Monday night, but he added, "I can't condemn the sport."

The jumpers missed their target—Orther Air Service Field at Wakeman—by 10 miles.

Authorities were seeking the answer to why the plane, a B25 Mitchell, was over the lake.

Coy said his first thoughts were "to open the parachute a little higher than I normally would, hoping that the wind would blow me as close to shore as possible."

"As I hit the water, I had completely taken off my reserve chute and I unfastened my helmet strap and undid all my straps, except one leg strap to hold me in. As soon as my foot hit the water, I immediately unhooked that last strap to get free of all the gear. Then I floated on my reserve parachute, holding it in front of me until it became full of water and it sank."

"Then I floated on the helmet, struggling to get off some of my clothes. The waves were awful high and choppy. I took my helmet and used it like an upside down cup and it gave me buoyancy."

"Then I saw a boat coming and I said, 'Thank God' and waved my arms and hollered and still didn't know if he saw me because the waves were so high."

"But the men in the boat saw me and picked me up."

Plane Was Overloaded, Men Saved

CINCINNATI (AP) — Three men from the Cincinnati area were not among 14 sky divers who vanished in a parachute accident near Huron, Ohio, Sunday because the plane was overcrowded and they had to get off.

The men, Paul Ritchey, 25, Deer Park, Edward Schmitt, 22, North College Hill, and Robert Pierson, 28, Morning view, Ky. were "bumped" from the plane.

Ritchey said since they were the last three to board the plane and no one volunteered to get off, the pilot asked them to get off.

"We got on and were ready to leave when the pilot said he was overloaded and three divers would have to get off," Ritchey said.

But the three did suffer a mishap on their way home. Their hearing, loaded with sky diving gear, broke down near Columbus.

MADRAS, India (AP) — A report from the Himalayan kingdom of Sikkim today said Indian and Communist Chinese troops are facing each other with fixed bayonets only three or four yards apart at the Cho La mountain pass on the border.

A correspondent of the newspaper Hindu reported from Gangtok, Sikkim's capital, that a Chinese patrol crossed the border in the area of the pass early this month but retreated when Indian troops challenged them.

Later the Chinese returned in greater strength and since then each side has been claiming the pass, the report said.

STILL SEARCHING — Coast Guard officers (top) check charts of Lake Erie in the search for 15 skydivers missing or a jump from 20,000 feet. One of the victims was Mrs. Patricia Lowmsbury, 26, of Akron. She and her husband, Alvin, were married aboard a plane in June, 1964. Lowmsbury had given up skydiving recently.

Disputes To Be Aired At Arab Summit Confab

KHARTOUM, The Sudan (AP) — Continuing disputes among Arab leaders on policy toward Israel and the West in the wake of the June war promise rough going for the Arab summit conference opening today in Khartoum.

"We have settled nothing," said one delegate to the foreign ministers' preliminary conference Sunday night. "We are still divided on several major issues and it is too much to hope that the summit will be plain sailing."

The purpose of the summit is to forge a common policy "to erase the consequences of Israeli aggression."

Some moderate and militant leaders have refused to attend but sent representatives. All 13 Arab nations are to be represented.

The leading Arab dove, President Habib Bourguiba of Tunisia, decided not to come as did King Idris of Libya and King Hassan of Morocco.

Bourguiba has advocated that Egypt, Jordan and Syria, the losers in the war, negotiate with Israel. Bourguiba's representative also is expected to urge improving Arab relations with the United States, Britain and West Germany, accused by the militants of aiding Israel in the war.

The two leading militants, Presidents Houari Boumedienne of Algeria and Nouredin Atassi of Syria, were also staying home. They feared the moderates would set the policy at the summit.

Boumedienne and Atassi are the chief exponents of a military "second round" against Israel, to be carried on by guerrillas.

Much debate is also expected on whether to continue the Arab embargo on oil shipments to the United States, Britain and West Germany.

Meanwhile, the Soviet government announced that its ambassador to Cairo, Dimitri P. Pozhidayev, has been transferred to an unspecified post and replaced by Sergei A. Vinogradov, 60, a top Soviet diplomat.

Presumably Pozhidayev was relieved because the Soviet government was taken so by surprise by the debacle the Soviet-equipped Egyptian forces suffered in the war.

Judge LBJ on Record, Udall Tells Democrats

CLEVELAND (AP) — Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall went to bat for President Johnson Monday night and told a Democratic pep rally that Johnson is the "most taken - for-granted president I have ever seen."

Udall spoke to 1,200 at a $50 a-plate rally and said the President should not be judged by a "summer of discontent" but on his total record.

It Was A Royal Love-In

WOBURN, England (AP) — The flower people—45,000 of them—grooved on joss sticks, rolled on the grass and got to their thing all weekend long on the dream-deep lawns of stately Woburn Abbey. The duke dug it—at $2.80 a head.

With 10 per cent of the $70,000 profit from Britain's first mass love-in, the Duke of Bedford says he'll be glad to open his ancestral estate again next year to the hippies.

The duke turned to the flower power business over the long weekend as part of his relentless commercial campaign to pay off $16.8 million in death duties on the estate he inherited. Normally his customers are run-of-the-mill tourists, though he once was host to a paying nudist encampment.

The love-in crowd was smaller than expected—organizers had predicted 100,000—but they came painted, beaded and

PPG Plant Faces NLRB Complaint

An unfair labor practices complaint was filed Tuesday against the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. in connection with the operation of its Circleville plant.

The complaint was filed in Cincinnati by the National Labor Relations Board. It was based on charges filed by Local 776 of the International Chemical Workers Union AFL-CIO.

Don Cree, local plant manager for PPG, was not available at noon today for comment on the NLRB action.

The NLRB complaint charged the local has been the collective bargaining agent for the employees since 1965, but that since March of this year the company has refused to enter into bargaining negotiations with the union.

A hearing on the complaint will be held here on Oct. 18, according to the Cincinnati LRB office.

Paper Reports 'Third Party' Move by Reds

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Daily News says government security agencies have unearthed evidence of a Communist party scheme "to seize direction of the National Conference for New Politics as a vehicle for a new third political party."

In a Washington story in today's editions, the News said, "These agencies believe the Communists hope to turn the 'New Politics' movement into a political front as a successor to the defunct Progressive Labor party."

William F. Pepper, executive director of the national conference, replied in a statement that convention delegates will be accredited "only if they have been chosen democratically by a local constituent organization in an open meeting. Therefore, no single organization could possibly dominate the convention."

Designed to form a coalition of peace activists, the five-day convention opens Thursday in Chicago with Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. scheduled as keynote speaker.

Ailing Mahalia Postpones Tour

BERLIN (AP) — At the advice of her doctor, gospel singer Mahalia Jackson has postponed indefinitely a European concert tour to avoid the possibility of a heart attack. "I want to sing," she cried, wiping her wet eyes Monday. "Oh, how I want to sing. What about all those people who have paid money to see me? Will they understand?"

Dr. Rolf Schroeder, cardiac specialist at the West Berlin Westend Hospital, said, "The burden of performing would have been a great strain on her heart and could have led to a heart attack."

Miss Jackson, 55, suffered a heart attack three years ago.

16 Planes Lost; Fighting Heavy

SAIGON (AP) — The United States suffered its heaviest losses for a seven-day period in the air war against North Vietnam—16 planes—between Aug. 21 and Aug. 27, the U.S. Command announced today.

The 16th plane—a Marine A6 Intruder—was lost on Sunday due to "unknown causes," the command said, but announcement of the loss was delayed for security reasons.

The two Marine fighters were listed as missing in action, bringing the total of missing fliers for the seven-day period to 24. Three were rescued. In South Vietnam, the stepped-up Communist campaign of shelling and bridge destruction in the northern war zone was met today by three heavy B52 raids on Red staging bases inside the demilitarized zone.

Military headquarters said Communists blew up nine bridges in the past 24 hours—eight of them in the northern area and one in the main Mekong delta city of Can Tho.

The heavy attacks by the B52s followed intensive tactical air strikes by Marine and Air Force pilots on the gun positions where the Reds have dug in their heaviest weapons—152mm guns with a range of almost 20 miles.

These big guns opened up with heavy barrages on Marine positions two days ago, and since then Marine fighter-bomber pilots claim to have destroyed 14 fortified pits housing the big truck-drawn field pieces.

The increase in Communist shelling, bridge-blowing and terrorism was evidently intended to demonstrate Red muscle during the South Vietnamese presidential election campaign which ends Sunday. The

U.S. Pilot In Hands of Red Chinese

TOKYO (AP)—Red China's official New China News Agency today released what it said was a portrait of American pilot Robert J. Flynn and his identification card with the service number 636219. His hometown was not given.

It also released two photographs which it said were of wreckage of the two U.S. planes shot down over China's Kwangsi province bordering North Vietnam on Aug. 21.

NCNA said Flynn was captured from one of the two planes shot down by the Chinese army over Kwangsi.

U.S. authorities have said two American planes were presumed lost that day over China during raids near the border between North Vietnam and China.

On Monday, NCNA said a captured American pilot shot down over Chinese territory recently was displayed at a rally Saturday in Nanning, in Kwangsi province, but that report did not identify the pilot.

The agency also released a picture of a dead man it identified as U.S. pilot Jimmy L. Buckley, service number: 616-613. The caption did not give his hometown.

"This is the end of U.S. bandits," it said.

Wilson Takes Economic Rein After Shakeup

LONDON (AP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson staked his personal prestige today on Britain's return to economic health with a Cabinet shakeup in which he took the reins of the Department of Economic Affairs.

Wilson's goals are a cut in unemployment, a strong pound, an end to wage restraints and a prosperous Britain hammering at the door of the European Common Market for admission.

Wilson also is acutely conscious of the disillusionment of voters weighed down by rising prices while wages are frozen in an attempt to curb domestic demand and bring the country's trade into balance.

Although the measures are showing signs of success, with the trade deficit halved last year and prospect of a small surplus this year, Wilson knows that he must soon offer the voters some light at the end of the tunnel or face trouble in the general election that must be held by the spring of 1971.

Emphasizing his Common Market drive was the dismissal of Douglas Jay, president of the Board of Trade and a staunch opponent of a Britain in Europe. Wilson brought into the Cabinet George Thomson and Anthony Crosland, both ardent Europeans.

Shirley Temple Black To Try for Congress

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — Shirley Temple Black, the one-time child movie star, announced her candidacy for Congress today, following in the political footsteps of two former co-stars, U.S. Sen. George Murphy and Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Mrs. Black, a Republican, like Murphy and Reagan, will seek the 11th California Congressional District seat vacated by the death last May of Republican J. Arthur Younger.

Several Hurt In Clashes At Mission

LONDON (AP)—Members of Red China's diplomatic mission and police fought bloody battles today outside the legation in the heart of London, bringing an angry diplomatic exchange.

Several policemen and Chinese were injured in two clashes. The Chinese brandished sticks, axes and threw bottles. One flashed a revolver but it was not fired. The police fought back with night sticks.

The first clash came when police stepped in to stop about 10 Britons and 15 Chinese and were punching and kicking one another after an exchange of words. A crowd of about 150 watched.

The second clash came as China's charge d'affaires returned from lodging a protest at the Foreign Office against the first incident.

About 40 policemen and Chinese were involved in a seething mass of bodies in a tiny news behind the legation.

The fighting started when the Chinese barred the way of a police car and refused to move. The police pushed them away and immediately a crowd of Chinese rushed out of the mission's headquarters swinging bats and axes and hurling bottles and ash can covers.

One policeman was led away with blood streaming from a head wound. A Chinese, his face bloodied, was dragged by police along the cobblestones.

Cigarette, Beer Taxes Up Friday

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohioans buying almost anything above 15 cents almost anywhere in the state Friday will find out what it costs to take what school officials call "the biggest step forward in this history of Ohio education."

They'll find out because newly approved sales and excise taxes go into effect at one minute after midnight Friday—and the levies are expected to produce $300 million for Ohio schools in the next two years.

Anyone planning a shopping spree at 12:02 a.m. Friday can expect to pay:

— 40 cents for a pack of cigarettes from a public vending machine and 35 cents for cigarettes from plant and office machines. Cartons will cost at least 32 cents more.

— Five cents more for a six-pack of beer and 16 cents more for a case.

— $20 more for a $2,000 car and $30 more for a $3,000 auto. Liquor prices are scheduled to go up in October, as soon as the Ohio Department of Liquor Control finishes its calculations and distributes enough new price tags.

In addition to the sales tax, the department has also been given authority to raise prices five per cent. It says it has no immediate plans to do so.

In return for all this, says Dr. Martin Essex, state superintendent of public instruction, taxpayers will get education improvements whose "impact will be felt in every corner of the Buckeye State."

Chief among these is at least a $400 pay increase for Ohio teachers, whose average salaries will go from below the national median to the upper 25 per cent.

State support per pupil will go from $290 to $400 and an additional $150 will be provided per pupil in disadvantaged "inner-city" areas.

Essex says the funds will also allow 122 more classes for handicapped children, 460 more classes for slow learners, and sizable expansion of vocational education programs.

Negro Votes Big Factor in Dixie Runoff

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi votes today in a Democratic primary election runoff where unassessed Negro voting strength and the ballots of a defeated hard-line segregationist could decide the governor's race.

In local contests, the state may elect its first Negro sheriffs since Reconstruction. Four candidates for sheriff are among the 21 Negroes seeking county offices against white opponents.

A Democratic congressman from Detroit was in Mississippi to observe the voting and to encourage participation of Negroes. Rep. John C. Conyers, a Negro and a member of the House Judiciary Committee, said he would file a report with his committee although his visit was unofficial.

He said the report was prompted because "the Justice Department is literally flooded with complaints" about past Mississippi elections.

The question of the Negro vote was whether it would be behind state Treasurer William Winter or U.S. Rep. John Bell Williams for governor. Each candidate claimed the conservative, segregationist banner and attacked the federal government.

PPG Plant Faces NLRB Complaint

An unfair labor practices complaint was filed Tuesday against the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. in connection with the operation of its Circleville plant.

Paper Reports 'Third Party' Move by Reds

William F. 16 Planes Lost; Fighting Heavy

SAIGON (AP) — The United States suffered its heaviest losses for a seven-day period in the air war against North Vietnam—16 planes—between Aug. 21 and Aug. 27, the U.S. Command announced today.

The 16th plane—a Marine A6 Intruder—was lost on Sunday due to "unknown causes," the command said, but announcement of the loss was delayed for security reasons.

U.S. Pilot In Hands of Red Chinese

TOKYO (AP)—Red China's official New China News Agency today released what it said was a portrait of American pilot Robert J. Flynn and his identification card with the service number 636219. His hometown was not given.

It also released two photographs which it said were of wreckage of the two U.S. planes shot down over China's Kwangsi province bordering North Vietnam on Aug. 21.

NCNA said Flynn was captured from one of the two planes shot down by the Chinese army over Kwangsi.

U.S. authorities have said two American planes were presumed lost that day over China during raids near the border between North Vietnam and China.

On Monday, NCNA said a captured American pilot shot down over Chinese territory recently was displayed at a rally Saturday in Nanning, in Kwangsi province, but that report did not identify the pilot.

The agency also released a picture of a dead man it identified as U.S. pilot Jimmy L. Buckley, service number: 616-613. The caption did not give his home town.

"This is the end of U.S. bandits," it said.

Cigarette, Beer Taxes Up Friday

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohioans buying almost anything above 15 cents almost anywhere in the state Friday will find out what it costs to take what school officials call "the biggest step forward in this history of Ohio education."

They'll find out because newly approved sales and excise taxes go into effect at one minute after midnight Friday—and the levies are expected to produce $300 million for Ohio schools in the next two years.

Anyone planning a shopping spree at 12:02 a.m. Friday can expect to pay:

— 40 cents for a pack of cigarettes from a public vending machine and 35 cents for cigarettes from plant and office machines. Cartons will cost at least 32 cents more.

— Five cents more for a six-pack of beer and 16 cents more for a case.

— $20 more for a $2,000 car and $30 more for a $3,000 auto. Liquor prices are scheduled to go up in October, as soon as the Ohio Department of Liquor Control finishes its calculations and distributes enough new price tags.

In addition to the sales tax, the department has also been given authority to raise prices five per cent. It says it has no immediate plans to do so.

In return for all this, says Dr. Martin Essex, state superintendent of public instruction, taxpayers will get education improvements whose "impact will be felt in every corner of the Buckeye State."

Chief among these is at least a $400 pay increase for Ohio teachers, whose average salaries will go from below the national median to the upper 25 per cent.

State support per pupil will go from $290 to $400 and an additional $150 will be provided per pupil in disadvantaged "inner-city" areas.

Essex says the funds will also allow 122 more classes for handicapped children, 460 more classes for slow learners, and sizable expansion of vocational education programs.

Youth Held After Fight

Circleville Police are holding a Columbus juvenile as a result of a fight which took place early Tuesday morning.

An anonymous phone call was received by police 1:29 a. m. advising officers of a fight involving six youths on E. Ohio St. at a house trailer.

Ptl. Larry Pontius, Ptl. Wesley Barlow, Deputy Jim Lockard and Auxiliary Deputy Ed Gahn were dispatched to the scene. According to the report, no one was fighting when the officers arrived, but "people were running everywhere."

Police said the inside of the trailer at the address in question was "wrecked." Officers then rounded up youths, including two Circleville residents, who were hiding in the vicinity of the trailer and attempted to learn what had happened.

ACCORDING to the Police report, four Columbus youths, "who were worked over pretty well," were put into their car and "run out of town," with the exception of one youth who was held by order of Millard Dorn, juvenile officer.

The juvenile, police said, is the same one who had broken into Davis Sohio and Prairie Lanes last month and had attempted to enter Peppermint Lounge.

Investigation of the incident is continuing by local authorities and names are being withheld pending investigation results.

Terrorism, Propaganda Scheduled

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese sources say the Viet Cong have plotted a countrywide campaign to sabotage the presidential elections Sunday with increased military attacks, terrorism and propaganda.

The sources said information on the Communist plans came from captured documents, intelligence reports and questioning of guerrillas taken prisoner.

Over the weekend the Communists launched a series of mortar, rocket and artillery attacks from Quang Tri Province below the demilitarized zone to the Mekong delta in the south. There also has been a sharp increase in terrorist kidnaping, murders and sabotage.

The sources said one captured document called for Communist forces in the northern city of Da Nang to "mash the buffoonery of the election." It said that if the elections were a failure, this would provide "momentum to force a new political crisis."

The same document assailed the United States, saying: "Taking part in the election is letting Americans go on burning houses, destroying religious denominations, increasing cowboy and prostitutes, increasing the cost of living, increasing taxes and letting our men be pushed into death."

Another captured document said the policy of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front is "to incite the masses to push a full blown political struggle to disrupt the fall election of Thieu-Ky and to make the new crisis general."

From this it appeared that the Viet Cong is assuming Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky—the military candidates—will be elected president and vice president.

The sources said elaborate anti-election plans have been drawn for all four of South Vietnam's military corps areas.

These plans were said to call for propaganda meetings in village and hamlets to warn people not to go to the polls. One report said the Viet Cong "may be planning to use large scale forces—regimental size or larger—to disrupt the elections."

Another report said the Viet Cong are giving youths special training in assembling explosive devices "which can be placed in polling places."

Others outlined plans for terrorist teams to "destroy public buildings and assassinate government personnel... kidnap civilians in government-controlled area and seize their identity cards and voters cards for modification and use by Viet Cong cadres."

In one province east of Saigon, the sources said, instructions have gone out for the Viet Cong to assassinate, kidnap or threaten government employees, especially those directly involved in the electoral process. On election day, they said, the orders are for Viet Cong cadres "to set up ambushes along lines of communications to prevent people from going to the polling places, attack polling places by shelling or mortaring, and to assault polling places with military units and remove the ballot boxes."

In the immediate area of Saigon, the reports said, plans call for the Viet Cong to "kidnap and assassinate local officials, plant mines and grenades along roads leading to voting places and inside voting booths and ballot boxes."

One report said a special Viet Cong battalion has been broken up into small teams around Saigon and instructed "to move gradually to areas bordering Saigon to wait for orders to attack isolated outposts and shell the capital."

In the delta area just south of Saigon, special efforts to sabotage roads leading into the capital are reported planned.

Plans also are reported for widespread use of South Vietnamese government military uniforms by Viet Cong assigned terrorist activity on election day.

Another report said that in two districts the Viet Cong announced they will "award prizes to the people who make the most outstanding efforts to counter the elections." The prizes were not stipulated.

In a copyrighted article for "Newsday Special," syndicate of the Long Island, N.Y., newspaper Newsday, Schoenbrunn wrote:

"Officials frankly admit grave problems requiring a huge effort to survive, but they also insist that the bombing has yielded them major political, psychological and social gains, creating a hardline unity in the civilian population."

"The result of the intensified bombing has been to considerably strengthen hardliners—Hanoi hawks, who outnumber doves in angry reaction to the bombing. It has become very difficult to try to discuss possibilities for peace."

On South Vietnam' political front, the leading civilian candidate, Tran Van Huong, said today he is satisfied that the presidential campaign is going "normally" and that alleged "pressures and intimidations of the local authorities against our campaign workers have been reduced."

Huong, a former premier, said he could not say whether the election would be entirely honest "because intimidating the campaign workers is one thing and cheating at the election is another."

Observers think that Huong has been closing the gap between his ticket and that of Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu for president and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky for vice president.

A woman who lives in an upstairs apartment in the same new joined in the fighting by throwing flower pots at the Chinese.

A blonde policewoman who got caught up in the fighting said "It was terrifying. I never thought I would see anything like this in Britain."

When the fighting died down ambulances drove up to the legation and the attendants were allowed to carry out on stretchers three Chinese — their heads wrapped in bandages.

A crowd of 300 began to converge on the legation but were held back by police.

Some shouts came from the crowd, "Smash Communism," "Mao is a pig!" and "Go back to China."

After the first outburst before noon, Chinese Charge d'affaires Shen Ping called at the Foreign Office and angrily accused the British police of beating up members of his staff.

Arthur de la Mare, Foreign Office undersecretary, rejected the charge. He said Chinese diplomats in London have been provoking the public and police.

The undersecretary reminded Shen that the British diplomatic legation in Peking had been burned by mobs, the British charge d'affaires' house had been looted and British diplomats attacked.

"In these circumstances," De la Mare asked, "do you really expect your protest to be taken seriously?"

The attacks on the British in Peking a week ago came after expiration of a Red Chinese ultimatum to release Chinese Communist newsmen and editors held in British Hong Kong for sedition.

The British ignored the ultimatum and only today three executives of Communist papers in the colony were convicted and sentenced to three years in prison. Two other Communist executives are still on trial.

Most of the Chinese involved in the fighting in London were members of the legation staff.

Later they gathered outside, chanting, "Down with British imperialism" and "Long Live Chairman Mao Tse-tung." The Chinese who had his face bloodied was in the cathrine. He shouted at the onlookers: "British Fascists!"

Youth Held After Fight

Circleville Police are holding a Columbus juvenile as a result of a fight which took place early Tuesday morning.

An anonymous phone call was received by police 1:29 a. m. advising officers of a fight involving six youths on E. Ohio St. at a house trailer.

Pt. Larry Pontus, Pt. Wesley Barton, Deputy Jim Lockard and Auxiliary Deputy Ed Gahn were dispatched to the scene. According to the report, no one was fighting when the officers arrived, but "people were running everywhere."

Police said the inside of the trailer at the address in question was "wrecked." Officers then rounded up youths, including two Circleville residents, who were hiding in the vicinity of the trailer and attempted to learn what had happened.

ACCORDING to the Police report, four Columbus youths, "who were worked over pretty well," were put into their car and "run out of town," with the exception of one youth who was held by order of Millard Dorn, juvenile officer.

The juvenile, police said, is the same one who had broken into Davis Sobio and Prairie Lanes last month and had attempted to enter Peppermint Lounge. Investigation of the incident is continuing by local authorities and names are being withheld pending investigation results.

Terrorism, Propaganda Scheduled

By EDWIN Q. WHITE

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. and South Vietnamese sources say the Viet Cong have plotted a countrywide campaign to sabotage the presidential elections Sunday with increased military attacks, terrorism and propaganda.

The sources said information on the Communist plans came from captured documents, intelligence reports and questioning of guerrillas taken prisoner.

Over the weekend the Communists launched a series of mortar, rocket and artillery attacks from Quang Tri Province below the demilitarized zone to the Mekong delta in the south. There also has been a sharp increase in terrorist kidnappings, murders and sabotage.

The sources said one captured document called for Communist forces in the northern city of Da Nang to "mash the buffoonery of the election." It said that if the elections were a failure, this would provide "momentum to force a new political crisis."

The same document assailed the United States, saying: "Taking part in the election is letting Americans go on burning houses, destroying religious denominations, increasing cowboy and prostitutes, increasing the cost of living, increasing taxes and letting our men be pushed into death."

Another captured document said the policy of the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front is "to incite the masses to push a full blown political struggle to disrupt the fall election of Thieu-Ky and to make the new crisis general."

From this it appeared that the Viet Cong is assuming Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky—the military candidates—will be elected president and vice president.

The sources said elaborate anti-election plans have been drawn for all four of South Vietnam's military corps areas.

These plans were said to call for propaganda meetings in village and hamlets to warn people not to go to the polls. One report said the Viet Cong "may be planning to use large scale forces—regimental size or larger—to disrupt the elections."

Another report said the Viet Cong are giving youths special training in assembling explosive devices "which can be placed in polling places."

Others outlined plans for terrorist teams to "destroy public buildings and assassinate government personnel... kidnap civilians in government-controlled areas and seize their identity cards and voters cards for modification and use by Viet Cong cadres."

In one province east of Saigon, the sources said, instructions have gone out for the Viet Cong to assassinate, kidnap or threaten government employees, especially those directly involved in the electoral process.

On election day, they said, the orders are for Viet Cong cadres "to set up ambushes along lines of communications to prevent people from going to the polling places, attack polling places by shelling or mortaring, and to assault polling places with military units and remove the ballot boxes."

In the immediate area of Saigon, the reports said, plans call for the Viet Cong to "kidnap and assassinate local officials, plant mines and grenades along roads leading to voting places and inside voting booths and ballot boxes."

One report said a special Viet Cong battalion has been broken up into small teams around Saigon and instructed "to move gradually to areas bordering Saigon to wait for orders to attack isolated outposts and shell the capital."

In the delta area just south of Saigon, special efforts to sabotage roads leading into the capital are reported planned.

Plans also are reported for widespread use of South Vietnamese government military uniforms by Viet Cong assigned terrorist activity on election day.

Another report said that in two districts the Viet Cong announced they will "award prizes to the people who make the most outstanding efforts to counter the elections." The prizes were not stipulated.

Nazis, Troopers Disputing Burial

CULPEPER, Va. (AP) — The hearse bearing the body of American Nazi party leader George Lincoln Rockwell was barred from Culpeper National Cemetery today as federal troops arrived to enforce an order banning Nazi insignia and uniforms.

Military policemen armed with pistols and night sticks arrived in helicopters and buses. They were led by Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, Army provost marshal.

"I am going to protect federal property," Turner told newsmen as the hearse waited outside the gate of the little military cemetery. "No one will be permitted in here with Nazi uniforms and insignia."

There appeared to be about 50 mourners, some dressed in full Nazi uniforms bearing swastikas. Five of those in uniforms said they were to be pallbearers.

Among the floral pieces was a large swastika composed of red carnations and a Nazi flag in red, white and black flowers.

License plates of cars carrying the mourners, some of whom brought children with them, were from California, Ontario, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Michigan, New York and Pennsylvania.

A young man in an Army private's uniform said he was "here to mourn my real commander in chief—Rockwell." He identified himself as Pfc. James G. DeWitt of Mount Pleasant, Mich., stationed at Ft. Gordon, Ga. That, coincidentally, is headquarters of the Military Police Corps, headed by Turner.

But when DeWitt threw a snappy salute at Turner, the general returned it without appearing to notice the black armband of mourning on the private's sleeve.

Turner, who said anyone could enter as long as he did not wear or carry any Nazi insignia or emblem, told acting party leader Matt Koehl those disobeying the order would be arrested.

Minutes earlier, Edward Maxwell, the superintendent of Culpeper National Cemetery, refused to allow Rockwell followers in Nazi uniforms and wearing swastikas permission to enter.

"My orders from Washington are no swastikas can be used inside the cemetery — government property," he said.

Maxwell refused to let the shiny black hearse bearing Rockwell's body past the cemetery gates until all Nazi insignia were removed from uniforms.

But Matt Koehl, acting leader of the party, replied that the men would not remove their swastika arm bands and pins.

And there matters stood—the hearse parked at the cemetery gate, four or five uniformed members standing about it, newsmen milling around, and Koehl, in civilian clothes seated soberly in the front seat of the hearse.

Meanwhile, Chester Goodwin, regional cemetery supervisor, said the Army provost marshal, Maj. Gen. Carl C. Turner, was flying from Washington to take charge of the situation.

In a copyrighted article for "Newsday Special," syndicate of the Long Island, N.Y., newspaper Newsday, Schoenbrunn wrote:

"Officials frankly admit grave problems requiring a huge effort to survive, but they also insist that the bombing has yielded them major political, psychological and social gains, creating a hardline unity in the civilian population.

"The result of the intensified bombing has been to considerably strengthen hardliners—Hanoi hawks, who outnumber doves in angry reaction to the bombing. It has become very difficult to try to discuss possibilities for peace."

On South Vietnam' political front, the leading civilian candidate, Tran Van Huong, said today he is satisfied that the presidential campaign is going "normally" and that alleged "pressures and intimidations of the local authorities against our campaign workers have been reduced."

Huong, a former premier, said he could not say whether the election would be entirely honest "because intimidating the campaign workers is one thing and cheating at the election is another."

Observers think that Huong has been closing the gap between his ticket and that of Chief of State Nguyen Van Thieu for president and Premier Nguyen Cao Ky for vice president.

The girls told newsmen Sunday they passed the time reading, playing games and "meditating on life."

Court Hears Check Charge

A Circleville man who issued two bad checks to downtown businesses appeared before Acting Municipal Court Judge Harry Margulis Monday to answer for the charges.

William L. Gilbert, 370 Weldon Ave., cashed a $10 check at G. C. Murphy Co. store on Aug. 19, 1967. The check was drawn from the Second National Bank, Circleville, where Gilbert had no account.

On Aug. 21, Gilbert cashed another check, this one for $40 at Caddy Miller's Mens Store.

Gilbert pleaded no contest to the first offense and guilty to the second. Judge Margulis fined him $25 and $14 court costs on each charge, adding a 30-day jail sentence to the second offense.

Commissioners' Agenda Is Light

Legislative action was held to a minimum at the Pickaway County Commissioners meeting Monday in the courthouse.

Claims totaling $64,830.79 were approved for payment by the commissioners. Approval was also voiced of the purchase of 51 venetian blinds for the courthouse. Total cost of the blinds including installation is $1,402.73.

Commissions received by the county from four pay phones at the courthouse and Memorial Hall totaled $24.25. Also received was $4.91 for the commission of the Coca-Cola vending machine in the courthouse.

A check for $376.57 was received from the Commodity Credit Corp. for the 1967 Feed-Grain Program of the Agricultural Stabilization Committee. The land registered in the program was once the location of the county home.

Two Circleville men complained of neck injuries following a two-car accident 4:41 p. m. Monday at the intersection of E. Mound and S. Washington Sts.

Referred to a doctor were Herschel Martin, 57, of 115 Fairview Ave., and Herb Short, 341 E. Mound St. They were passengers in a car operated by Earl E. Martin, 55, of 115 Fairview Ave.

According to police officers, Martin stopped at the intersection and was struck in the rear by a car driven by Stanley R. Jackson, 46, of 541 E. Union St.

No arrests were made.

A woman who lives in an upstairs apartment in the same new joined in the fighting by throwing flower pots at the Chinese.

A blonde policewoman who got caught up in the fighting said "It was terrifying. I never thought I would see anything like this in Britain."

When the fighting died down ambulances drove up to the legation and the attendants were allowed to carry out on stretchers three Chinese — their heads wrapped in bandages.

A crowd of 300 began to converge on the legation but were held back by police.

Some shouts came from the crowd, "Smash Communism," "Mao is a pig!" and "Go back to China."

After the first outburst before noon, Chinese Charge d'affaires Shen Ping called at the Foreign Office and angrily accused the British police of beating up members of his staff.

Arthur de la Mare, Foreign Office undersecretary, rejected the charge. He said Chinese diplomats in London have been provoking the public and police.

The undersecretary reminded Shen that the British diplomatic legation in Peking had been burned by mobs, the British charge d'affaires' house had been looted and British diplomats attacked.

"In these circumstances," De la Mare asked, "do you really expect your protest to be taken seriously?"

The attacks on the British in Peking a week ago came after expiration of a Red Chinese ultimatum to release Chinese Communist newsmen and editors held in British Hong Kong for sedition.

The British ignored the ultimatum and only today three executives of Communist papers in the colony were convicted and sentenced to three years in prison. Two other Communist executives are still on trial.

Most of the Chinese involved in the fighting in London were members of the legation staff.

Later they gathered outside, chanting, "Down with British imperialism!" and "Long Live Chairman Mao Tse-tung." The Chinese who had his face bloodied was in the gathering. He shouted at the onlookers: "British Fascists!"

Walter Seymour, 21, of 118 East St., forfeited a $24 bond for failing to stop for a red traffic signal.

The World Today

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — House members, forced to stay in session until nearly 4 a.m. one night last week, almost failed to show up in sufficient numbers Monday to vote themselves a 10-day Labor Day vacation.

It was a good example of the problem that faces Democratic leaders, whose job it is to schedule legislative business.

Trying to meet the requests of Easterners, who don't like to be here Fridays, and younger members, who wanted a vacation with their families, the leaders found themselves confronted last Thursday with a choice between putting off final action on foreign aid until mid-September or keeping the House in session until the measure passed.

At 3:36 a.m. Friday morning the House finally passed the aid bill—by eight votes—after a boisterous 15-hour session marked by a near fist fight between two members and passage of several potentially far-reaching policy riders.

The situation could have been avoided by acceptance of either of two proposals made last year by a joint congressional reorganization committee. One was for Monday-through-Friday sessions, the other for an annual August vacation.

The House seldom meets on Friday, and it usually does little on Monday. The bulk of absentees are Easterners, most of them Democrats, who practice law or conduct district business on Mondays and Fridays.

Thus Democratic leaders avoid scheduling important votes on those days when they are faced with the loss of their working majority—which is considerably less than the party's nominal 247-186 majority.

The congressional reform bill passed by the Senate is hopelessly stalemated in the House Rules Committee. And leaders have displayed little interest in an August vacation.

Another way of avoiding last week's situation is through better scheduling, a major House problem all summer.

Three weeks ago, leaders started debate on the President's major anticrime proposal on a Wednesday. Thursday afternoon, the half-finished debate was put off until the following week.

The next week, a civil rights bill was given only one day on the schedule. Time-delaying quorum calls by Southern opponents, which could have been foreseen, forced the debate into a second day. But leaders avoided a Friday meeting by squeezing a Social Security bill into one day.

Knowing the foreign aid debate would be lengthy, the leaders began it on Monday. But on Tuesday, they took three hours off for a space money bill, and each night, they adjourned the House by 7 p.m.

The result was that midway through Thursday evening, no work was in sight as the House worked its way through 45 amendments.

The problem could normally have been resolved by putting the matter off until this week.

But when the Labor Day recess was agreed upon, younger members complained they would be unable to vacation with their families, since most schools open the day after Labor Day.

With feeling so high that wives were drafting a petition to Speaker John W. McCormack, the leadership relented and passed the word members could stay away this week without missing anything of importance.

But so many left town that only 219 turned up on Monday's first roll call. Later there were 227. The House needs 217 members present to do business.

American-Japanese Film To Depict Pearl Harbor Day

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Tora, Tora, Tora!" shouted exultant Japanese pilots as they flew away from the flaming wreckage of Pearl Harbor.

They were using the code word—meaning tiger—to signal their superiors that the Dec. 7, 1941, mission had been successful. Now "Tora, Tora, Tora!" will be the title of a unique film coproduction involving the two countries that became mortal enemies on that historic day.

Filming is scheduled to begin next January on the Japanese portion of the Pearl Harbor attack. Japan's foremost director, Akira Kurosawa—"Rashomon," "Seven Samurai"—will make that part with his own film company.

Next summer, 20th Century-Fox will film the American side of the encounter in Hawaii. Directing will be Richard Fleischer, an expert in the big, complicated production—"20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," "Fantastic Voyage," "Dr. Dolittle."

Fleischer recently returned from a meeting with Kurosawa in Hawaii, and he reported on progress of the production:

"We are in the process of trying to get the script down to workable size. Right now it runs 386 pages, and we must cut down at least 150. Our writer, Larry Forester, does the script here, and then it is sent to Japan, where Kurosawa and his people change it into the Japanese idiom.

"This is a very slow and tedious process. The Japanese script has to be done by hand in their calligraphy style, and this results in a great many pages. Their script comes to us in wheelbarrows."

Fleischer met Kurosawa for the first time in Hawaii and was surprised to find him a six-footer. Communication was not easy, since the Japanese director speaks no English and is inclined to be withdrawn, at least in American company. But Fleischer indicated that he and Kurosawa agreed on basic fundamentals.

The project originated with producer Elmo Williams, who persuaded 20th Century-Fox to buy "The Broken Seal," a book about the breaking of the Japanese diplomatic code. Then Williams found a greater treasure trove concerning the beginning of the Pacific war: "Tora, Tora, Tora!" by Dr. Gordon Prang, history professor at the University of Maryland.

Dr. Prang had been appointed a special historian by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, and he produced an immensely detailed account of the events on both sides before, during and after the Pearl Harbor attack. The volume was published in Japan and excerpted in Reader's Digest; it is scheduled for release as a book in this country next year.

The American and Japanese film makers are now coming to grips with the enormous logistical problems in reproducing the start of the war.

"We have searched all over the world and cannot find a single Japanese Zero that can fly," said Fleischer. "We'll have to revamp American planes to make them look like Zeros. So far we have found flyable American planes to use in the picture."

"An even greater problem is ships. There are absolutely no Japanese ships available; virtually all were sent to the bottom of the ocean. Many of our World War II ships are now in mothballs. There are some battleships being used at naval museums, and we'll photograph them from carefully planned angles so they will not seem anchored."

"A real problem is finding aircraft carriers with straight flight decks, like those used in the war. There is a chance that some will be demothballed by the time we start shooting."

"Tora, Tora, Tora!" cannot make use of documentary footage, because it wouldn't match the color and size of the newly shot film. The movie will need to rely on miniatures for some of the action sequences. "But some of our 'miniature' ships will be 60-80 feet long," said Fleischer.

He added that cooperation for the film venture is being sought from the Department of the Defense. Use of naval vessels is crucial to the project, he said.

"Tora, Tora, Tora!" will not be one of those name-charged epics in which famous faces appear as officers and GIs. Said Fleischer: "We'll go for unknowns, profiting from the experience with 'The Longest Day.' The only major criticism of the picture was that the appearance of big stars detracted from the reality."

What will be the cost of "Tora, Tora, Tora!"?

Fleischer shrugged. "I'd rather not think about it. Just say it will be one of the most expensive films of all time."

Dynamite Found Under Bridge

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — A group of construction workers reported to authorities Monday they had found 180 sticks of dynamite beneath a bridge on U.S. 127 north of Seven Mile.

The report was the dynamite was in boxes.

Other details were not available immediately but a state highway department representative was sent to the scene.

Peace Groups Plan March to Washington

NEW YORK (AP)—A coalition of anti-Vietnam war groups announced today it plans a massive demonstration in Washington Oct. 21 in an attempt to shut down the Pentagon.

"Thousands of people will disrupt the center of the American war machine," said a statement issued at a news conference called by the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam.

The statement said the action was planned to move from "simple protest to collective resistance." The demonstrators will try to fill the hallways and block entrances of the Pentagon, headquarters of the Defense Department.

The committee said it is seeking "a direct, personal and collective confrontation with the war-makers."

It has been organizing from coast to coast to have thousands of Americans through the nation's capital the weekend of Oct. 21-22.

Lamb and antelope hot dogs are popular in Africa. The Finns prefer wienies made of reindeer meat. Japanese vendors sell whale-meat franks.

Rules for Use Of Coat of Arms, State Seal Set Up

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's Great Seal and the state coat of arms were conformed to constitutional requirements and their use restricted in the weekend windup session of the legislature.

A measure researched by Lt. Gov. John W. Brown at the administration's request spells out the details.

The new act provides a Great Seal restricted to official state use and a coat of arms for other state business.

The coat of arms is virtually the same as the familiar State Seal.

When the circular seal is surrounded by the legend, "The Great Seal of the State of Ohio," its use is restricted to state compacts, various executive documents and appointment and election certificates.

The coat of arms is for use on other official documents and by courts and elected state officials. Those used by other officials will designate their offices such as: "The Seal of the Secretary of State."

After Jan. 1 all new seals used by notaries public must conform to the new act.

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON (AP) — House members, forced to stay in session until nearly 4 a.m. one night last week, almost failed to show up in sufficient numbers Monday to vote themselves a 10-day Labor Day vacation.

It was a good example of the problem that faces Democratic leaders, whose job it is to schedule legislative business. Trying to meet the requests of Easterners, who don't like to be here Fridays, and younger members, who wanted a vacation with their families, the leaders found themselves confronted last Thursday with a choice between putting off final action on foreign aid until mid-September or keeping the House in session until the measure passed.

At 3:36 a.m. Friday morning the House finally passed the aid bill—by eight votes—after a boisterous 15-hour session marked by a near fist fight between two members and passage of several potentially far-reaching policy riders.

The situation could have been avoided by acceptance of either of two proposals made last year by a joint congressional reorganization committee. One was for Monday-through-Friday sessions, the other for an annual August vacation.

The House seldom meets on Friday, and it usually does little on Monday. The bulk of absentees are Easterners, most of them Democrats, who practice law or conduct district business on Mondays and Fridays.

Thus Democratic leaders avoid scheduling important votes on those days when they are faced with the loss of their working majority—which is considerably less than the party's nominal 247-186 majority.

The congressional reform bill passed by the Senate is hopelessly stalemated in the House Rules Committee. And leaders have displayed little interest in an August vacation.

Another way of avoiding last week's situation is through better scheduling, a major House problem all summer.

Three weeks ago, leaders started debate on the President's major anticrime proposal on a Wednesday. Thursday afternoon, the half-finished debate was put off until the following week.

The next week, a civil rights bill was given only one day on the schedule.

Time-delaying quorum calls by Southern opponents, which could have been foreseen, forced the debate into a second day. But leaders avoided a Friday meeting by squeezing a Social Security bill into one day.

Knowing the foreign aid debate would be lengthy, the leaders began it on Monday. But on Tuesday, they took three hours off for a space money bill, and each night, they adjourned the House by 7 p.m.

The result was that midway through Thursday evening, no end was in sight as the House worked its way through 45 amendments.

The problem could normally have been resolved by putting the matter off until this week. But when the Labor Day recess was agreed upon, younger members complained they would be unable to vacation with their families, since most schools open the day after Labor Day.

With feeling so high that wives were drafting a petition to Speaker John W. McCormack, the leadership relented and passed the word members could stay away this week without missing anything of importance.

But so many left town that only 219 turned up on Monday's first roll call. Later there were 227. The House needs 217 members present to do business.

American-Japanese Film To Depict Pearl Harbor Day

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Tora, Tora, Tora!" shouted exultant Japanese pilots as they flew away from the flaming wreckage of Pearl Harbor.

They were using the code word—meaning tiger—to signal their superiors that the Dec. 7, 1941, mission had been successful. Now "Tora, Tora, Tora!" will be the title of a unique film coproduction involving the two countries that became mortal enemies on that historic day.

Filming is scheduled to begin next January on the Japanese portion of the Pearl Harbor attack. Japan's foremost director, Akira Kurosawa—"Rashomon," "Seven Samurai"—will make that part with his own film company.

Next summer, 20th Century-Fox will film the American side of the encounter in Hawaii. Directing will be Richard Fleischer, an expert in the complicated production—"20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," "Fantastic Voyage," "Dr. Dolittle."

Fleischer recently returned from a meeting with Kurosawa in Hawaii, and he reported on progress of the production:

"We are in the process of trying to get the script down to workable size. Right now it runs 386 pages, and we must cut down at least 150. Our writer, Larry Forester, does the script here, and then it is sent to Japan, where Kurosawa and his people change it into the Japanese idiom."

"This is a very slow and tedious process. The Japanese script has to be done by hand in their calligraphy style, and this results in a great many pages. Their script comes to us in wheelbarrows."

Fleischer met Kurosawa for the first time in Hawaii and was surprised to find him a six-footer. Communication was not easy, since the Japanese director speaks no English and is inclined to be withdrawn, at least in American company. But Fleischer indicated that he and Kurosawa agreed on basic fundamentals.

The project originated with producer Elmo Williams, who persuaded 20th Century-Fox to buy "The Broken Seal," a book about the breaking of the Japanese diplomatic code. Then Williams found a greater treasure trove concerning the beginning of the Pacific war: "Tora, Tora, Tora!" by Dr. Gordon Prang.

history professor at the University of Maryland.

Dr. Prang had been appointed a special historian by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, and he produced an immensely detailed account of the events on both sides before, during and after the Pearl Harbor attack. The volume was published in Japan and excerpted in Reader's Digest; it is scheduled for release as a book in this country next year.

The American and Japanese film makers are now coming to grips with the enormous logistical problems in reproducing the start of the war.

"We have searched all over the world and cannot find a single Japanese Zero that can fly," said Fleischer. "We'll have to revamp American planes to make them look like Zeroes. So far we have found flyable American planes to use in the picture."

"An even greater problem is ships. There are absolutely no Japanese ships available; virtually all were sent to the bottom of the ocean. Many of our World War II ships are now in mothballs. There are some battleships being used at naval museums, and we'll photograph them from carefully planned angles so they will not seem anchored."

"A real problem is finding aircraft carriers with straight flight decks, like those used in the war. There is a chance that some will be demothballed by the time we start shooting."

"Tora, Tora, Tora!" cannot make use of documentary footage, because it wouldn't match the color and size of the newly shot film. The movie will need to rely on miniatures for some of the action sequences. "But some of our 'miniature' ships will be 60-80 feet long," said Fleischer.

He added that cooperation for the film venture is being sought from the Department of the Defense. Use of naval vessels is crucial to the project, he said.

"Tora, Tora, Tora!" will not be one of those name-charged epics in which famous faces appear as officers and GIs. Said Fleischer: "We'll go for unknowns, profiting from the experience with 'The Longest Day.' The only major criticism of the picture was that the appearance of big stars detracted from the reality."

What will be the cost of "Tora, Tora, Tora!"? Fleischer shrugged. "I'd rather not think about it. Just say it will be one of the most expensive films of all time."

Dynamite Found Under Bridge

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP) — A group of construction workers reported to authorities Monday they had found 180 sticks of dynamite beneath a bridge on U.S. 127 north of Seven Mile.

The report was the dynamite was in boxes.

Other details were not available immediately but a state highway department representative was sent to the scene.

Peace Groups Plan March to Washington

NEW YORK (AP)—A coalition of anti-Vietnam war groups announced today it plans a massive demonstration in Washington Oct. 21 in an attempt to shut down the Pentagon.

"Thousands of people will disrupt the center of the American war machine," said a statement issued at a news conference called by the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam.

The statement said the action was planned to move from "simple protest to collective resistance." The demonstrators will try to fill the hallways and block entrances of the Pentagon, headquarters of the Defense Department.

The committee said it is seeking "a direct, personal and collective confrontation with the war-makers."

It has been organizing from coast to coast to have thousands of Americans throng the nation's capital the weekend of Oct. 21-22.

Lamb and antelope hot dogs are popular in Africa. The Finns prefer wienies made of reindeer meat. Japanese vendors sell whale-meat franks.

Rules for Use Of Coat of Arms, State Seal Set Up

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's Great Seal and the state coat of arms were conformed to constitutional requirements and their use restricted in the weekend windup session of the legislature.

A measure researched by Lt. Gov. John W. Brown at the administration's request spells out the details.

The new act provides a Great Seal restricted to official state use and a coat of arms for other state business.

The coat of arms is virtually the same as the familiar State Seal.

When the circular seal is surrounded by the legend, "The Great Seal of the State of Ohio," its use is restricted to state compacts, various executive documents and appointment and election certificates.

The coat of arms is for use on other official documents and by courts and elected state officials. Those used by other officials will designate their offices such as: "The Seal of the Secretary of State."

After Jan. 1 all new seals used by notaries public must conform to the new act.

If Prince Charles doesn't watch out he'll soon be as famous a prankster on this side of the water as Ethel and Bobby Kennedy.

Bobby and Ethel made the front pages for their wingding parties when the late John F. Kennedy was in the White House. Ethel herself got tossed, fully clothed, into a pool and so did other illustrious people.

Prince Charles reportedly helped pull the fully clothed Countess Cadogan into a pool at a British version of a wingding. If he can't run for public office, he at least merits being called the Prince of Whales.

Middle-Aged Ex-Romeos

The most desperate Romeos, as any night club chorus girl will tell you are middle-aged, bald-headed men who used to have curly hair. They try to hold on to romance harder than anyone.

Fat men hate hot weather, not because it causes them to perspire so much, but because that's the season when it's hardest for them to keep their shirttail in.

The two most inept films of 1967 so far are "Luv," starring Jack Lemmon, and "Woman Times Seven," starring Shirley MacLaine. Each makes the audience wince at the waste of the talents of a fine performer hopelessly miscast.

The Business World

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot more than the hills are alive with the sound of music in the United States.

The echo is being heard from the mountains, to the prairies, to the oceans, accompanied by a louder and louder tune on the cash registers of the music industry.

In 1930, there were 13 million amateur musicians banging, tootling and strumming away in the United States, according to the American Music Conference.

But by the beginning of this year, the ranks of the music men, women and children had swollen to more than 41 million. About 15 million of these range in age from 4 to 21, and the other 26 million are over 21.

"Amateur musicians in the United States increased by an average of approximately a million annually from 1950 to 1961," says the conference, which describes itself as an educational organization supported by major segments of the music industry.

"From 1962 to 1966, however, the average annual increase exceeded 1.8 million with dramatic increases of 2.3 million in 1965 and again in 1966.

"America's amateur musicians are almost entirely responsible for the long record-breaking upswing in sales of new instruments, instrument accessories and instructional aids that started 20 years ago. They have also contributed substantially to improved sales of sheet music in recent years."

The conference says these combined sales, which totaled $90 million in 1941, jumped to $555 million in 1966 and surpassed "the dollar volume of all records sold, and the combined dollar volumes of all spectator sports, still and movie cameras, comic books and playing cards."

How do you explain this current boom, boom, boom in an industry that was in decline before World War II?

"There is a higher level of education in the country and a greater need for individual creativity," says Marion Egbert, the conference's educational director. "This combination is part of the great atmosphere that exists for music making."

Egbert also cites new teaching techniques which make learning music fun and not a chore—pinking out the "Skater's Waltz" on the piano every day for a month is out—and the "growing awareness generally in education that things like music and art are needed to balance their programs. Almost every school today has a music program."

Or, as the member of a youthful rock 'n' roll group puts it musical instruments are a way for young people to express themselves.

A total of 1,430,000 guitars was sold in 1966, says the conference, and more than 4,650,000 guitars have been purchased during the past four years.

Speaking of Your Health

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

It is surprising how often children between the ages of three and five have a squint of the eyes that goes unnoticed by their parents. In many instances it is a teacher or neighbor who first calls attention to it and directs the family to a physician.

Parents may very well not see it at all, living as they do in constant contact with the child. The reason for overlooking this may well be an attitude by parents that this too will pass with time, especially if they pay no attention to it.

It is imperative that cross-eyes, or squints, be examined early and treated even if they seem to come and go with fatigue. To "wait and see" only wastes the valuable time that could be used either in corrective exercise or with earlier surgery.

Every one has observed how a newborn infant tries to focus on an object. The eyes seem to roam haphazardly without any special relationship to each other.

Very quickly they begin to focus properly. This is a process of coordination that is probably as complex as learning to stand and walk.

If the condition is suspected, an eye specialist can map out a program of eye exercises and regular examination.

There are some eye doctors who believe that all children at the age of two or three should have a complete eye examination to rule out squints or other errors long before they become apparent.

There are many tests, both simple and elaborate, which can now be performed even in a very young child. When the exact cause of the problem is known, eyes may sometimes be corrected with eyeglasses and exercise at a very early age.

Occasionally, it may become necessary to cover the straight eye in order to force the squinting or "lazy" eye into muscular activity. Dr. Melvin Schrier of New York City, in a personal communication to me, described the highly technical training necessary for the new science of orthoptics.

These specialists in orthoptics are not physicians, yet they work in conjunction with eye doctors for the correction of eye problems. In many instances eye function in a child is restored by ingenious devices that are now used in this field.

When all methods of correction fail, surgery may be considered. The operation is a remarkably safe one and can be most gratifying to the child and to the family. It is wise not to put off suggested surgery "because a parent would rather not have an operation." No one ever wants an operation for themselves or for their children if it can be avoided.

The psychological benefits of correcting cross-eyes are tremendous. The child who is beginning to go to school is thus spared the painful comments of his playmates.

There are, of course, many nearly as important as the fact visual benefits that are derived from the correction of this problem. How it is done is not that it should be done.

If you even think you have a cold, stay away from a hospitalized patient.

Africa in '64, the U.S. in '67 By John Chamberlain

The world scene tends to be repeated in the local scene, but with a time lag. And so, recalling the successful settlement of the U. S. troubles with the Organization of African Unity in 1964 when Moise Tshombe's rule in the Congo was causing all sorts of misunderstanding, we may hope that the corresponding domestic difficulties which Washington is having with Negro activists in the cities can be overcome by reason.

The clearest account yet of the 1964 African crisis, when the United States was being excoriated for its "imperialism" in providing the planes for the Belgian paratroopers who rescued some two thousand "hostages" from the rebels in the eastern Congo, is to be found in William Attwood's book about his sojourns as a U. S. Ambassador in Africa. "The Reds and the Blacks." Like the rebellions in U. S. central city areas in 1964 was real. But it rested on a complete misinterpretation of motives. And the Communists, then as now, were responsible for exacerbating the misunderstanding.

When Connecticut's Senator Tom Dodd was working with President Kennedy in 1962 in what turned out to be a vain attempt to mediate the quarrel between Moise Tshombe's Katanga province and the central government of the Congo, he was convinced that Tshombe was no African "Uncle Tom" for Belgian copper interests. Tshombe's interest was to drive a "very hard bargain with the Belgians in the interests of his country," but the accent was on the word "bargain," for, as Dodd has phrased it, the controversial Congolese leader who now languishes in an Algerian jail realized "that European personnel and foreign companies can be pushed only so far if you want to have their continued cooperation."

Tshombe, though he proved no match for the UN army in Katanga, happens to be a man of competence. The Congo itself recognized this when it called him back from European exile to try to hold the country together when it seemed to be reverting to cannibalistic, tribalism. As in the American cities in 1967, the Communists — and the Far Left in general — saw their opportunity in the spread of chaos. They backed the enemies of Tshombe's central Congo government to the hilt, staging an airlift of weapons from Egypt and Algeria to rebels in areas close to Uganda and the Sudan in the deep heart of Africa.

The propaganda war conducted by the Communists, with both Moscow and Peking collaborating despite their own ideological rifts, was more effective than the rebel military campaign inside the Congo. Before they were through, the Reds had most of the "moderate" African nations, beginning with Kenya's Kenya, thinking that the U. S. was using Tshombe to save its investments (largely mythical) in the Congo and to restore "neo-colonialism" to Africa. How untrue this was is ably documented in Mr. Attwood's running account of his Ambassadorship to Kenya in 1964. It was hard to get it across to Jomo Kenyatta that the drop of the Belgian paratroopers in Stanleyville was wholly humanitarian in its purpose. The Red-backed "simbas" — as the young rebels were called after the Swahili word for lion — might have murdered hundreds of whites if a rescue expedition had not come in time. Kenyatta refused to believe this at first. But Attwood played it remarkably cool at the U. S. Embassy in Kenya. Despite the poison which the Russians and the Red Chinese and their local collaborators in Kenya managed to get into the press, Kenyatta was eventually persuaded of our honorable intentions toward Kenya in particular, and toward sub-Saharan tropical Africa in general.

So the crisis was dissipated. What strikes the reader of Mr. Attwood's account of his stewardship in the Kenyan capital of Nairobi is the parallel it affords to the present crisis inside the U. S. The "simbas" in Newark, Detroit, Milwaukee, New Haven, and elsewhere have been rebelling. The Stokely Carmichaels and the Rap Browns, like the pro-rebel African orators of 1964, have been busy with their incitements about Lyndon Johnson's "failure" in 1964. It was against "whitey" in the so-called ghettos cannot be won by the small minority that supports it. Somehow good will must be restored.

But where is the Kenyatta in the U. S. Negro community to take the lead in recognizing the Left incitations for what they are? The parallel between 1964 in Africa and 1967 in the U. S. has yet to be completed.

ABSENT-MINDED Professor Headman sat in the reception hall awaiting the arrival of his first baby in the delivery room upstairs. A smiling nurse finally popped her head in the door to exclaim, "Congratulations, Professor! It's a boy!" Professor Headman looked up from his philosophical treatise to snap petulantly, "Well, what does he want?"

A sudden downpour completely discombobulated Sunday afternoon traffic on Long Island's Sunrise Highway. It rained so hard that automatic wipers couldn't keep windshields clear, and more cautious drivers pulled up at the side of the road until the storm passed over. It was still pouring, however, when a youth edged his convertible through the mix-up with his top down. He was drenched to the skin. A compassionate Islander called out to him, "I'd get that top up fast if I were you." The youth waved unconcernedly at him and called back, "I should worry! It's not my car!"

New Rate for Sales Taxes Starts Friday

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants said today sales tax increases approved by the legislature will start at 12:01 a.m. Friday.

Executive Director George B. Hammond said the increases, applied to finance the administration's big education program, will start on retail sales of 16 cents instead of the present 21 cents.

Inclusive brackets on which the tax will apply are: Sixteen to 31 cents, one cent tax; 32-51 cents, two cents; 52-71 three cents; 72 cents to $1.09, four cents; $1.09 to $1.31, five cents.

On sales higher than $1.31, the same brackets are repeated. Starting Sept. 1, the sales tax also will apply to cigarettes and beer and malt beverages.

The legislature did not place a sales tax on laundry and dry cleaning services, as previously proposed, Hammond said.

Hammond estimated that the new sales taxes would cost Ohioans $10 million more a month than the $30 million a month they now pay. He said another $900,000 a month might be raised by extension of the sales tax to beer and malt beverages.

AP Television-Radio Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Napoleon Solo, the indestructible "Man from U.N.C.L.E." is on the top of evil Thrush's most-wanted list. And Robert Vaughn, who plays the character in the NBC series, thinks he recently made the most-unwanted list in the political party of his choice.

The dark-haired actor, 35, is one of the new breed that not only takes politics seriously but is taken seriously by politicians. A dedicated Democrat and party worker, Vaughn is an outspoken critic of U.S. policy in Vietnam, and this, he says, has made him persona non grata.

In late June, Vaughn's name appeared as chairman of a group calling themselves "Dis-senting Democrats" in a three-page advertisement in a Los Angeles newspaper on a day when President Johnson was visiting the city.

The ad, which bore the names of some 3,000 others, proclaimed their determination not to vote for LBJ in 1968 unless he changed the course of the war.

"The Democratic party in California supports the President's position," said Vaughn. "It was not happy about the advertisement. I don't think the party cares much about me now."

His activity—which stimulated similar petition-signing in other cities throughout the country—has resulted in an invitation to appear on a mid-September program of NBC's "meet the Press," a new-interview show rarely graced by actors unless they are either candidates for public office or already elected.

Relaxing in his dressing room after an "U.N.C.L.E." scene set in a subterranean garden of poisoned mushrooms, Vaughn said he does not think his involvement in partisan politics and his public position on a controversial subject has hurt his professional career.

"I get a lot of mail about it," he said. "And a lot of it is angry in tone. But I would estimate that for every letter against my position, 100 are for it. So far I have no evidence my activity has hurt me, but maybe I'll feel something when we get back on the air with new shows."

With television accepted as a powerful tool in political campaigning, and with the successful swing of two Republican actors from film studios to important governmental posts—U.S. Sen. George Murphy and Gov. Ronald Reagan, both of California — increasing numbers of performers are openly assuming political stances.

Several harbor political ambitions. They range from Dan Blocker of "Bonanza" and Chuck Connors of "Cowboy in Africa" to Steve Allen of the summer variety show of the same name.

The old argument about whether an actor should become involved in politics has become academic. A lot of them are.

Vaughn, although believed to have ambitions about running for office, invariably brushes off questions noncommittally.

"People seem to forget that I'm still a fairly young man with—I hope—many good acting years ahead of me," he said. "And acting is my profession."

His contract for the current series carries him through two more seasons. Vaughn says he will leave when his five years ends even if there still seems to be life in the cloak-and-dagger show.

"Five years is long enough to do any one thing," he said.

A high pressure area over the Buckeye State today will bring sunshine that should lift afternoon temperatures into the upper 70s and the lower 80s.

A cold front through the northern plains today is scheduled to arrive in Ohio Wednesday. Showers could reach northwest Ohio sometime after midnight. Showery and cooler weather is then in order for most of Ohio for the remainder of Wednesday. Tonight, however, will be warmer, with temperatures in the mid 50s and low 60s.

Jordan Maintains Stance Of 'Passive Resistance'

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Jordan is in a state of suspense, as one official describes it, but it is in better condition than many foresaw two months ago after the Middle East war.

It faces crushing problems: It lost its richest land and its 28-plane air force. Its 56,000-man army was knocked out. It has 230,000 refugees to be fed and housed.

And if it becomes clear that Israel intends to keep all the Jordan-claimed territory west of the Jordan River, Arab political circles say, King Hussein's regime could face an upheaval.

There is evidence that Jordan is trying to prevent any efforts to explode armed resistance in the territory occupied by Israel despite Israeli contentions the government is inciting Arabs on the rich west bank to rebel.

Jordanian officials and Western diplomats here say there is no incitement and point out: Not one Israeli has been reported killed on the west bank since the Middle East war and no riots have erupted.

The Israelis have made no claims of arms being smuggled across the river, where secret crossing are easy and frequent.

Security sources add that Jordan arrested eight Syrian infiltrators who tried to slip into the occupied zone this month on a guerrilla raid against the Israelis.

One European diplomat observed: "Jordan wants to keep the resistance passive."

It has reason for wanting quiet on the west bank. Chaos or terrorism, or Israeli reprisals that could follow an uprising, would send countless more refugees fleeing into eastern Jordan.

An Arab resistance campaign, the government calculates, would give Israel an excuse to refuse permission for the present refugees to return to their homes. Jordan hopes Israel can be persuaded to accept 150,000 or more.

Israel has balked at wholesale return of Arabs because of a exhortation by one government official for them to act as "a thorn in the side of Israel." Senior diplomats here note that this was an isolated statement, and they dismiss it as Arab rhetoric.

Relaxing in his dressing room after an "U.N.C.L.E." scene set in a subterranean garden of poisoned mushrooms, Vaughn said he does not think his involvement in partisan politics and his public position on a controversial subject has hurt his professional career.

"I get a lot of mail about it," he said. "And a lot of it is angry in tone. But I would estimate that for every letter against my position, 100 are for it. So far I have no evidence my activity has hurt me, but maybe I'll feel something when we get back on the air with new shows."

With television accepted as a powerful tool in political campaigning, and with the successful swing of two Republican actors from film studios to important government posts—U.S. Sen. George Murphy and Gov. Ronald Reagan, both of California—increasing numbers of performers are openly assuming political stances.

Several harbor political ambitions. They range from Dan Blocker of "Bonanza" and Chuck Connors of "Cowboy in Africa" to Steve Allen of the summer variety show of the same name.

The old argument about whether an actor should become involved in politics has become academic. A lot of them are.

Vaughn, although believed to have ambitions about running for office, invariably brushes off questions noncommittally.

"People seem to forget that I'm still a fairly young man with—I hope—many good acting years ahead of me," he said. "And acting is my profession."

His contract for the current series carries him through two more seasons. Vaughn says he will leave when his five years ends even if there still seems to be life in the cloak-and-dagger show.

"Five years is long enough to do any one thing," he said.

How Weather Looks Today

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Official Weather Bureau summary of Ohio's weather:

Ohio skies cleared Monday night and temperatures lowered into the upper 40s and the 50s. Patchy ground fog developed in many sections before sunrise. Visibility was reduced to zero or near zero at Columbus and Zanesville. Morning temperatures around the state included Toledo 47, Cleveland 53, Cincinnati 54, Marietta and Columbus 55.

A high pressure area over the Buckeye State today will bring sunshine that should lift afternoon temperatures into the upper 70s and the lower 80s.

A cold front through the northern plains today is scheduled to arrive in Ohio Wednesday. Showers could reach northwest Ohio sometime after midnight. Showery and cooler weather is then in order for most of Ohio for the remainder of Wednesday. Tonight, however, will be warmer, with temperatures in the mid 50s and low 60s.

FORECASTS
OHIO—Increasing cloudiness tonight with chance of showers north and west after midnight. Low tonight middle 50s to the low 60s. Mostly cloudy and turning cooler Wednesday with showers.

Jordan Maintains Stance Of 'Passive Resistance'

AMMAN, Jordan (AP)—Jordan is in a state of suspense, as one official describes it, but it is in better condition than many foresaw two months ago after the Middle East war.

It faces crushing problems: It lost its richest land and its 28-plane air force. Its 56,000-man army was knocked out. It has 230,000 refugees to be fed and housed.

And if it becomes clear that Israel intends to keep all the Jordan-claimed territory west of the Jordan River, Arab political circles say, King Hussein's regime could face an upheaval.

There is evidence that Jordan is trying to prevent any efforts to explode armed resistance in the territory occupied by Israel despite Israeli contentions the government is inciting Arabs on the rich west bank to rebel.

Jordanian officials and Western diplomats here say there is no incitement and point out: Not one Israeli has been reported killed on the west bank since the Middle East war and no riots have erupted.

The Israelis have made no claims of arms being smuggled across the river, where secret crossing are easy and frequent.

Security sources add that Jordan arrested eight Syrian infiltrators who tried to slip into the occupied zone this month on a guerrilla raid against the Israelis.

One European diplomat observed: "Jordan wants to keep the resistance passive."

It has reason for wanting quiet on the west bank. Chaos or terrorism, or Israeli reprisals that could follow an uprising, would send countless more refugees fleeing into eastern Jordan.

An Arab resistance campaign, the government calculates, would give Israel an excuse to refuse permission for the present refugees to return to their homes. Jordan hopes Israel can be persuaded to accept 150,000 or more.

Israel has balked at wholesale return of Arabs because of an exhortation by one government official for them to act as "a thorn in the side of Israel." Senior diplomats here note that this was an isolated statement, and they dismiss it as Arab rhetoric.

Draft Laws Explained

EDITOR'S NOTE: In an effort to create a greater public understanding of the laws and regulations governing the induction of personnel into the Armed Forces, the Selective Service System has prepared a series of pertinent questions and corresponding responses concerning provisions of the draft law. Here is another in the series.

Question: Last June I received my baccalaureate degree. I have been accepted for graduate study in history next September. Will I qualify for a II-S deferment?

Answer: You may be placed in Class II-S for such study but will be deferred for one academic year only or until you cease to satisfactorily pursue the course of instruction, whichever occurs first.

Question: I have completed three years of college and earned 75 per cent of the units required for my degree but my class standing is very low. Can I be deferred for my senior year?

Answer: Yes. You may be classified in II-S, student deferment, for the fourth year of undergraduate study. Class standing does not have a relationship to the deferment so long as you are a full-time and satisfactory student.

Question: Who is classified in Class I-Y?

Answer: A registrant not qualified under current standards for service in the Armed Forces but might be in time of war or national emergency declared by the Congress.

Returning Sept. 10 for a checkup, Mrs. Wallace, 40, probably will be an out-patient as doctors determine whether she should undergo precautionary X-ray treatment.

Such treatment, doctors said Monday, would-be to destroy any lingering cancer cells.

DEAR WORRIED: Call HIM and apologize. You don't say how old you are, but a woman who's been engaged for six months should be able to run her own life without coaching from her mother. If your fiance accepts your apology, marry him before he changes his mind. A man who insists on wearing the pants in his family can't be all bad.

again. We didn't. Fortunately he never called our parents. We promised ourselves we would never steal another thing, and we have kept that promise.

Years have passed and now our problem is, in filling out job applications, where it asks, "Have you ever been arrested?" Should we say YES or NO?

Please answer in your column as we are too ashamed to sign our names. Thank you.

DEAR TWO: You were only caught and warned. This is not the same as being "arrested." That you would ask, however, is a good sign.

Atomic Sets 50-Lap Labor Day Feature

CHILLICOTHE — A big weekend of racing is on schedule at Atomic Speedway and track officials are wondering who will be the next big-time driver to show up in the pits.

Regular racing is scheduled for Saturday night for both the super-modifieds and the road stocks and a 50-lap feature for the modifieds will climax the annual Labor Day championship Monday night.

So far this season a former national champion was among the many visiting drivers for the Buckeye 100 and at the latest race J. D. Leas of Steubenville walked away with the feature and consi after bringing the fans to attention with an unofficial assault on the track record.

Jim Meeker of Chillicothe will be the defending champion in Monday night's feature. The "cigar kid" was the track point leader through July with a pair of feature wins, including the Memorial Day championship.

Don Adams of Nelsonville and Dean Knittel of Portsmouth lead on the championships with three each, the latter's including the Buckeye 100. Double feature wins also are held by Junior Smalley of Frankfort, including the Firecracker championship, and by Audie Swartz of Muncie, Ind., in the Shrine and mid-season championships. Harold McGilton of Fremont took the Atomic 100 and the other feature in the 15-meet season went to Sam Erwin of Portsmouth.

Time trials will be at 7 p. m. on both nights, with racing starting at 8.

Ebenhack Shows In Sixth Race

Emmett Ebenhack fared the best of the three local sulky drivers competing at Scioto Downs Monday night.

Ebenhack piloted Direct Yates to a fourth place finish in the second race. In the sixth he drove Tiny's Dream to a third place finish, paying $5 to show.

Forrest Short drove two races, reining Dr. Pieper to seventh place finish in the first and Mary K. Creed to a third place finish in the seventh, paying $3 for the last race.

Jim Mace showed with Turbulant Way in the third race, paying $3.40 at the mutual windows.

Laver Blanks Rosewall

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Rod Laver defeated fellow Australian Ken Rosewall 6-2, 6-2, 12-10 Monday and won the first professional tennis tournament ever played at Wimbledon, citadel of the amateur game.

Phil's Streak Is 8; Reds Slip to Third

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies streaked to their eighth straight triumph Monday night as they squeaked past the Cincinnati Reds 3-2, but Manager Gene Mauch said, "we're still looking for one in a row."

Mauch made the comment in the clubhouse after the game as Philadelphia players yelled they were still in the pennant race.

The Phillies utilized a bases loaded balk by Gerry Arrigo and a gritty relief performance by Dick Farrell to turn back the Reds.

The victory vaulted Philadelphia into second place, one percentage point ahead of Cincinnati and Chicago.

"We have been playing some fine baseball," Mauch said in praising his team.

"Our pitching since the All-Star Game has been great. Farrell and Dick Hall have been doing fine and so have John Booser and Dick Ellsworth," the young manager said.

Farrell extinguished a Cincinnati rally in the sixth after the Reds scored once to come within one run at 3-2. With runners on second and third and one out, Farrell got Tony Perez to hit a ground ball to Cookie Rojas, although a run scored, and then got Tommy Helms to pop up and struck out newcomer John Bench.

Athletics' Rudeness Attacked By Former Plane Stewardess

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A former United Airlines stewardess, who is now married, has what she calls a "nightmare recollection" of a trip she made last season with the Kansas City Athletics to Baltimore.

Mrs. Michal Sheridan, now living in Milwaukie, a suburb of Portland, said she spoke out because of recent news accounts about the firing of Manager Alvin Dark and owner Charles Finley's disciplinary efforts.

Of the Athletics, she says, "they came on the plane with a rush, and shouting for beer, I and the other hostess weren't able to serve it fast enough to suit them and they became quite rough about it."

"They wouldn't fasten their seat belts. They decided to play cards, so some of them sat on top of the seat backs and we couldn't get them down."

"Always they wanted and demanded beer, more beer and still more. They'd throw the cans on the floor and we hostesses were almost crying in our despair. We couldn't even get down the aisle without a struggle, players were sitting with their legs across it and wouldn't move."

"The flight captain tried to key them down and how rude they were to him! They called him 'bussy,' meaning 'bus driver.' The time came to eat and that was a dreadful experience, with all of them yelling to be served at once."

She said she didn't think Dark was aboard.

Minnesota has lost only seven starters from its 1966 football team.

Pete Rose led off the inning with a single and Lee May followed with a double.

Farrell then put down Cincinnati threats in the eighth and ninth innings as the Reds got runners to second each inning.

With the score deadlocked 1-1 in the sixth, John Callison belted a solo homer, his 13th of the year, and then the Phils loaded the bases. Arigo balked in what proved to be the winning run as Gene Oliver made a run toward the plate from third base and forced Arigo in to the miscue.

Howard Haunts Yankees

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Elston Howard spent all afternoon figuring out how to beat the New York Yankees. He spent all evening doing it.

Howard, recently traded to Boston after more than 12 years with the Yankees, made his return to New York an auspicious one, singling in a run in Boston's 3-0 victory, easing rookie Al Lyle through three innings of great relief and even throwing out Mickey Mantle.

"I spent all day at home figuring how to get this guy out and how to get that guy out," the Red Sox catcher said after the game. "I was a little nervous, thinking about playing against a team I'd never played against before."

When Lyle got two strikes on Steve Whitaker in the one-out, bases-loaded situation into which he had been thrust in the sixth inning, the benefits of Howard's pre-game thinking quickly became apparent.

Howard went out to Lyle on the mound where "I told him he was going to throw a breaking ball and he did. And he got him out."

In other American League games, Minnesota edged Baltimore 3-2 to remain one percentage point up on the Red Sox in the white-hot pennant race, Washington dumped Chicago 2-1, Detroit downed California 10-0 and Cleveland outlasted Kansas City 8-7 in 11 innings.

In the National League, Chicago beat Houston 6-5, Pittsburgh took Atlanta 4-3, New York split with St. Louis 4-2 and 0-6, Philadelphia edged Cincinnati 3-2 and San Francisco bounced Los Angeles 7-0.

When Mantle attempted to steal in the fourth inning, Howard was a bit surprised, but not enough to keep from throwing out the Yankee slugger. Mick left the game with a jammed right knee.

The Twins got the chance to stay ahead of the Red Sox when Pete Richert, the Orioles' pitcher, threw a possible double play ball into centerfield in the seventh inning, allowing Rich Rollins to score the go-ahead run. Zoilo Versalles hit a two-run homer for the Twins.

The White Sox, meanwhile, fell into fourth place, two games off the pace, on Ken McMullen's two-run homer for the Senators. Bob Priddy got the victory, although he was in constant trouble and needed ninth-inning help from Dave Baldwin.

The Sox almost threatened in the ninth when Tommy Agee singled and went to third on Ken Berry's single with one out. Baldwin came on to strike out Duane Josephson and Berry lit out for second.

Second baseman Tim Cullen took catcher Paul Casanova's

throw and sent it back to the plate to nab Agee, trying to steal, for the final out.

Mickey Lolich stopped the Angels on five hits for his third shutout of the year for the Tigers. Lenny Green knocked in four runs, Bill Freehan drove three across and Norm Cash had three hits for Detroit.

The Indians and Athletics played Alphonse and Gaston in the late innings till Cleveland mustered a two-run homer in the 11th from Max Alvis.

The Athletics had taken a two-run lead into the ninth, only to see the Indians tie it up and Cleveland had a two-run lead in the 10th but Kansas City tied the score before the final runs.

Swift Filly Among Top Hambo Picks

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP)—Imagine going along and having all four wheels of your car lock.

That's how it feels sometimes to Art Hult, driver and trainer of Speed Model, a temperamental filly.

The big, brown daughter of Speedster ranks with three colts—Dazzling Speed, Speedy Streak and Keystone Pride—as top favorites in a field of a dozen 3-year-old trotters going in the $122,650 Hambletonian Wednesday.

"If things don't set just right, Speedy Model puts on a bucking act," says Hult, who at 26 could become the youngest driver ever to win the Kentucky Derby of harness racing.

"She acts up for no reason at times and then again it takes something definite to set her off. At Vernon Downs a clod of mud flew up and hit her in the stomach and she started bucking like a bronco."

"At Goshen, just as the mobile gate closed and the race started, she set all four feet and came to a squealing stop."

"We've put cups on the sides of her eye and that seems to have helped. She can look around but not back."

Speed Model has won five of 15 starts this year. Several times in her theatrical tantrums she even has tried to kick Hult out of the sulky.

Lately she has been on her good behavior, finishing second and fourth in two heats of the Review Futurity in Springfield, won by Dazzling Speed and Speedy Streak, and capturing one division of the split American National at Chicago's Sportsman's Park.

Howard Haunts Yankees

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Elston Howard spent all afternoon figuring out how to beat the New York Yankees. He spent all evening doing it.

Howard, recently traded to Boston after more than 12 years with the Yankees, made his return to New York an auspicious one, singling in a run in Boston's 3-0 victory, easing rookie Al Lyle through three innings of great relief and even throwing out Mickey Mantle.

"I spent all day at home figuring how to get this guy out and how to get that guy out," the Red Sox catcher said after the game. "I was a little nervous, thinking about playing against a team I'd never played against before."

When Lyle got two strikes on Steve Whitaker in the one-out, bases-loaded situation into which he had been thrust in the sixth inning, the benefits of Howard's pre-game thinking quickly became apparent.

Howard went out to Lyle on the mound where "I told him he was going to throw a breaking ball and he did. And he got him out."

In other American League games, Minnesota edged Baltimore 3-2 to remain one percentage point up on the Red Sox in the white-hot pennant race, Washington dumped Chicago 2-1, Detroit downed California 10-0 and Cleveland outlasted Kansas City 8-7 in 11 innings.

In the National League, Chicago beat Houston 6-5, Pittsburgh took Atlanta 4-3, New York split with St. Louis 4-2 and 0-6, Philadelphia edged Cincinnati 3-2 and San Francisco bounced Los Angeles 7-0.

When Mantle attempted to steal in the fourth inning, Howard was a bit surprised, but not enough to keep from throwing out the Yankee slugger. Mick left the game with a jammed right knee.

The Twins got the chance to stay ahead of the Red Sox when Pete Richert, the Orioles' pitcher, threw a possible double play ball into centerfield in the seventh inning, allowing Rich Rollins to score the go-ahead run. Zoilo Versalles hit a two-run homer for the Twins.

The White Sox, meanwhile, fell into fourth place, two games off the pace, on Ken McMullen's two-run homer for the Senators. Bob Priddy got the victory, although he was in constant trouble and needed ninth-inning help from Dave Baldwin.

The Sox almost threatened in the ninth when Tommy Agee singled and went to third on Ken Berry's single with one out. Baldwin came on to strike out Duane Josephson and Berry lit out for second.

Second baseman Tim Cullen took catcher Paul Casanova's

throw and sent it back to the plate to nab Agee, trying to steal, for the final out.

Mickey Lolich stopped the Angels on five hits for his third shutout of the year for the Tigers. Lenny Green knocked in four runs, Bill Freehan drove three across and Norm Cash had three hits for Detroit.

The Indians and Athletics played Alphonse and Gaston in the late innings till Cleveland mustered a two-run homer in the 11th from Max Alvis.

The Athletics had taken a two-run lead into the ninth, only to see the Indians tie it up and Cleveland had a two-run lead in the 10th but Kansas City tied the score before the final runs.

Swift Filly Among Top Hambo Picks

DU QUOIN, Ill. (AP)—Imagine going along and having all four wheels of your car lock.

That's how it feels sometimes to Art Hult, driver and trainer of Speed Model, a temperamental filly.

The big, brown daughter of Speedster ranks with three colts—Dazzling Speed, Speedy Streak and Keystone Pride—as top favorites in a field of a dozen 3-year-old trotters going in the $122,650 Hambletonian Wednesday.

"If things don't set just right, Speedy Model puts on a bucking act," says Hult, who at 26 could become the youngest driver ever to win the Kentucky Derby of harness racing.

"She acts up for no reason at times and then again it takes something definite to set her off. At Vernon Downs a clod of mud flew up and hit her in the stomach and she started bucking like a bronco."

"At Goshen, just as the mobile gate closed and the race started, she set all four feet and came to a squealing stop."

"We've put cups on the sides of her eye and that seems to have helped. She can look around but not back."

Speed Model has won five of 15 starts this year. Several times in her theatrical tantrums she even has tried to kick Hult out of the sulky.

Lately she has been on her good behavior, finishing second and fourth in two heats of the Review Futurity in Springfield, won by Dazzling Speed and Speedy Streak, and capturing one division of the split American National at Chicago's Sportsman's Park.

Pioneer Acres Is Home to The Montelius'

PERSONAL PRIDE — The late Mr. Harry Montelius of Pioneer Acres took a great deal of pride in his heritage and home. Well-known in the area for his art work, Mr. Montelius made this sketch of Pioneer Acres that is used as a letter head for the family stationery.

A motorist driving south on the Kingston Pike will inevitably turn his head to view the Montelius home. A stranger to the area will reduce his speed in order to have a lingering look. The beauty of its setting and the charm of the house are magnetic.

The history of this farm magnifies its appeal. The name "Pioneer Acres" was given the farm by the late Harry E. Montelius. A most descriptive designation, for these acres passed from the Indians to the United States Government by treaty and then by patent from Thomas Jefferson in 1807 and 1821 to Caleb Evans from whom Mr. Montelius was descended.

The original deed refers to a section of land. A section contained 640 acres of one mile square.

Caleb Evans, when he settled "Pioneer Acres" in 1796, was the first white settler in this region. Here he built his first log cabin, which shortly burned with nearly all his belongings. With his few remaining possessions he soon built another cabin which lasted until 1844 when the brick building, now standing, was built.

The present home retains a tavern table (antique-stretcher table) and a ladder-back chair from the original cabin of 1796.

The bricks for the house that we now see were kilned on the place and the lumber was hand hewn and finished for the floors and woodwork. One original floor remains. The walls are solid brick, 15 inches wide, ceilings are 10 feet high.

The first brick structure consisted of six rooms. In 1872 an adjoining summer kitchen and laundry were separated from the dwelling and an addition put on making a total of 14 rooms as they are today. The summer kitchen still exists in its original form as a separate building and has only recently been put to use as an art studio.

Nine open fireplaces heated the home. With the advent of a central heating system, two fireplaces were closed. Aside from the minor alterations necessitated by installation of central heating and plumbing, the house at Pioneer Acres remains today essentially the same as it was with the completed 1872 addition.

Caleb Evans' acquisition of land is history. He made it so. For his land fostered the first county school and the first county graveyard. The last-known Indians in this area left, by way of Caleb Evans' section, evidences of their culture remain.

The one-room, log school building was situated on the edge of the woods east of the present home. In 1938 the school was dismantled to release two pasturing horses who had found entrance into the log structure an easy task, egress an impos-

Social Security Checks Mailed One Day Early

Social Security beneficiaries who normally find their monthly checks in their mailbox on the third of the month will no longer have to wait until the next day when the third falls on a national holiday or a Sunday.

John J. Carr, district manager of Social Security in Chillicothe, said today that starting with the upcoming Labor Day weekend, social security checks will bear an earlier date and will be delivered on the previous mail - service day whenever the third falls on a Saturday or a holiday. In September of this year the third is on a Sunday.

"Most beneficiaries," he said, "will receive their social security checks on Saturday, Sept. 2, instead of on Tuesday, Sept. 5, as would have been the case under the old procedure."

Social security checks are normally released on the third of the month under an agreement to stagger the receipt of monthly checks going out from various Federal agencies, so that post offices, the Treasury Department, and local banks will not be overburdened at any one time of the month.

Explaining the reason for the change, Mr. Carr said, "Since these monthly checks are the main source of income for many beneficiaries, even a few day's delay could be serious, and this new procedure will eliminate any possible delay."

The new procedure will be used for the second time in December when the 3rd again falls on a Sunday.

The District Office is located at 606 Central Center in Chillicothe and is open from 8:30 a. m. to 4:45 p. m. weekdays, Monday through Friday, except on legal holidays. Also, on Thursdays, that office is open until 8 p. m. to accommodate those persons who are unable to come in during regular daily hours. The telephone number is 775-4950.

The office will be closed Sept. 4 in observance of the national holiday.

New Leads Hunted in Art Theft

CLEVELAND (AP) — Police have released two men in the investigation of a $500,000 theft of art objects July 23 and are sorting new leads.

The men, arrested Friday, were released Monday on the advice of the Cuyahoga County Prosecutor's Office. They were picked up the night the art objects were recovered.

One of the men was driving a tractor - trailer rig. Police found 200 art objects in the truck. The men told police they were not involved in the theft and it was learned they had been asked to take the tractor-trailer to a service station to have a tire changed.

Thomas L. Fawick, a 78-year-old industrialist and art collector, examined the contents of the trailer and estimated $75,000 worth of objects were still missing.

The objects, which included bronze statues, ivory works, paintings and a table of King Louis XV, were stolen from Fawick's warehouse at 5885 Lorain Ave.

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be striped tents on the south lawn of the White House and from them will flow free pop corn and hot dogs and ice cream and cotton candy and soda pop and candied apples.

And, if you are from six to 18, and the child or grandchild of one of the nation's top officials, you will be able to toss rings, race in sacks, be amused by clowns and barked at by barkers.

In speeches at the capitol they condemned a House-passed Social Security bill they said would cut hundreds of thousands of children from relief rolls by placing a ceiling on the future number of children participating in the Aid to Dependent Children program.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Marine Corps is acting to correct excessive jamming of the M-16 rifle, a lightweight, rapid-fire weapon extensively used in Vietnam, Gen. Wallace M. Greene, the corp's commandant said Monday.

The modified weapon, he told a Senate unit, will use a new buffer mechanism. Its rifle chamber will be coated by monel, an alloy of nickel, copper and other metals. And the formula for powder used in cartridges fired in the rifle will be changed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radiation exposure from the faulty use of X-ray machines and protective devices is far greater than from any other source and causes a large and unnecessary death toll, Senators were told Monday.

Routine medical exposure to ionizing radiation results in at least 3,000 and perhaps as many as 30,000 deaths annually, Karl Z. Morgan, director of the health physics division of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory told the Senate Commerce Committee.

Suburban Income Tax Opposed by Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a tax rebellion underway on Capitol Hill.

It has nothing to do with President Johnson's request for a 10 per cent surtax on federal income taxes. This is a rebellion against a one per cent income tax levied by suburban Montgomery County, Md., where about 100 congressmen maintain their Washington-area homes.

Nearly all of them have ignored the new county income tax.

One who didn't ignore the levy is Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio. He took notice of it and refused to pay.

Some congressmen contend they are residents of the states they represent and pay income taxes to those states. It would be unfair, they say, to have to pay the income taxes levied by Montgomery County or, for that matter, by the states of Maryland and Virginia and the District of Columbia.

However, they do pay personal property and real estate taxes levied in their respective Washington-area jurisdictions.

The Montgomery County tax was levied only for the last nine months of 1966. It was to be paid by "all residents." No other county in this immediate area yet levies an income tax.

Ashbrook says he filed a Montgomery County tax return, but sent no check. He estimates as many as three-quarters of his colleagues who live in the county have not even filed a return.

much less paid the tax. Under the law, said Douglas Dayhoff, county finance director, congressmen "are liable. Where there has been no change in the law, I feel we do have to collect."

He says he will seek full taxes from members who come from states with no income taxes such as Ohio and seek to collect a percentage from congressmen from states where the income tax is less than Maryland's.

Ashbrook believes however that as an Ohio resident he is not liable for either the Montgomery County or Maryland tax.

Although Dahoff is unmoved there is no known effort among state officials in Maryland or Virginia or from District officials to force members to pay state or D. C. income taxes.

Aside from the minor alterations necessitated by installation of central heating and plumbing, the house at Pioneer Acres remains today essentially the same as it was with the completed 1872 addition.

Caleb Evans' acquisition of land is history. He made it so. For his land fostered the first county school and the first county graveyard. The last-known Indians in this area left, by way of Caleb Evans' section, evidences of their culture remain.

The one-room, log school building was situated on the edge of the woods east of the present home. In 1938 the school was dismantled to release two pasturing horses who had found entrance into the log structure an easy task, egress an impossible one. Pictures of the first log school house are the only reminder.

NOT visible from the road is the county's first cemetery. It lies to the east atop a small rise, nestled in a wooded area. In recent years vandals have destroyed many of its markers and tombstones. Yet the graves remain, a reminder of those early pioneer settlers, contributors to the history of our county.

Indications of the Indians who roamed the lush Pickaway Plains are still in evidence at Pioneer Acres.

An article, as it appeared in the Pickaway County School News in March, 1935 reads . . . "History of the Indian by W. M. Reid. By 1796 all Indians were gone. The last visit that is certainly known was about 1845 or '46 when three Indians, two young men and one old warrior visited the Evans' farm on Scippo in Pickaway County on the line of the Scioto-Beaver trail to Lancaster and asked permission of the owner to dig on the back part of the farm in the woods. Permission was given and on the second day Mr. Evans, on going to inspect their work found them gone. They left a pit about 10 feet across and six feet deep. They had dug exactly down to a buried receptacle of some sort, had removed it and "silently stole away". The excavation still remains as it was made nearly 100 years ago."

The site as well as two granite rocks containing grooves that point to the hole marking the location still exist.

AS more families settled in this area and modes of transportation improved creating more traffic, the road fronting the brick house became a toll road.

The white frame house just over the bridge of Scippo Creek was the toll gate for the turnpike, a sign of progress long after the spring of 1796, when Caleb Evans made his way up the Scioto and found the place of his desire — a land of forests, streams, the tall grasses of the plans and fertile earth. Nature lavished an abundance of bounties on this land he chose to call his. Pride of ownership was successfully passed on to each generation for this farm has never been sold. Truly an American heritage, "Pioneer Acres."

Governor's Wife Stays in Hospital

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Mrs. James A. Rhodes, wife of the governor, is scheduled to remain in University Hospital for about a week, hospital spokesmen said Monday.

Mrs. Rhodes was admitted Aug. 21 for what was termed a general diagnostic evaluation of complaints related to past abdominal surgery. No further surgery is planned, the hospital said.

Social Security Checks Mailed One Day Early

Social Security beneficiaries who normally find their monthly checks in their mailbox on the third of the month will no longer have to wait until the next day when the third falls on a national holiday or a Sunday.

John J. Carr, district manager of Social Security in Chillicothe, said today that starting with the upcoming Labor Day weekend, social security checks will bear an earlier date and will be delivered on the previous mail — service day whenever the third falls on a Saturday or a holiday. In September of this year the third is on a Sunday.

"Most beneficiaries," he said, "will receive their social security checks on Saturday, Sept. 2, instead of on Tuesday, Sept. 5, as would have been the case under the old procedure."

Social security checks are normally released on the third of the month under an agreement to stagger the receipt of monthly checks going out from various Federal agencies, so that post offices, the Treasury Department, and local banks will not be overburdened at any one time of the month.

Explaining the reason for the change, Mr. Carr said, "Since these monthly checks are the main source of income for many beneficiaries, even a few days' delay could be serious, and this new procedure will eliminate any possible delay."

The new procedure will be used for the second time in December when the 3rd again falls on a Sunday.

The District Office is located at 606 Central Center in Chillicothe and is open from 8:30 a. m. to 4:45 p. m. weekdays, Monday through Friday, except on legal holidays. Also, on Thursdays, that office is open until 8 p. m. to accommodate those persons who are unable to come in during regular daily hours. The telephone number is 775-4950.

The office will be closed Sept. 4 in observance of the national holiday.

New Leads Hunted in Art Theft

CLEVELAND (AP) — Police have released two men in the investigation of a $500,000 theft of art objects July 23 and are sorting new leads.

The men, arrested Friday, were released Monday on the advice of the Cuyahoga County Prosecutor's Office. They were picked up the night the art objects were recovered.

One of the men was driving a tractor-trailer rig. Police found 200 art objects in the truck.

The men told police they were not involved in the theft and it was learned they had been asked to take the tractor-trailer to a service station to have a tire changed.

Thomas L. Fawick, a 78-year-old industrialist and art collector, examined the contents of the trailer and estimated $75,000 worth of objects were still missing.

The objects, which included bronze statues, ivory works, paintings and a table of King Louis XV, were stolen from Fawick's warehouse at 5885 Lorain Ave.

WASHINGTON (AP) — There will be striped tents on the south lawn of the White House and from them will flow free pop corn and hot dogs and ice cream and cotton candy and soda pop and candied apples.

And, if you are from six to 18, and the child or grandchild of one of the nation's top officials, you will be able to toss rings, race in sacks, be amused by clowns and barked at by barkers.

The Sept. 12 event, billed by Lady Bird Johnson's press office as an old fashioned country fair "unique in White House history," will be open to 500 boys and girls.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hundreds of welfare recipients rode

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Marine Corps is acting to correct excessive jamming of the M-16 rifle, a lightweight, rapid-fire weapon extensively used in Vietnam, Gen. Wallace M. Greene, the corps commandant said Monday.

The modified weapon, he told a Senate unit, will use a new buffer mechanism. Its rifle chamber will be coated by molybdenum, an alloy of nickel, copper and other metals. And the formula for powder used in cartridges fired in the rifle will be changed.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radiation exposure from the faulty use of X-ray machines and protective devices is far greater than from any other source and causes a large and unnecessary death toll, Senators were told Monday.

Routine medical exposure to ionizing radiation results in at least 3,000 and perhaps as many as 30,000 deaths annually, Karl Z. Morgan, director of the health physics division of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory told the Senate Commerce Committee.

Suburban Income Tax Opposed by Congressmen

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's a tax rebellion underway on Capitol Hill.

It has nothing to do with President Johnson's request for a 10 per cent surtax on federal income taxes. This is a rebellion against a one per cent income tax levied by suburban Montgomery County, Md., where about 100 congressmen maintain their Washington-area homes.

Nearly all of them have ignored the new county income tax.

One who didn't ignore the levy is Rep. John M. Ashbrook, R-Ohio. He took notice of it and refused to pay.

Some congressmen contend they are residents of the states they represent and pay income taxes to those states. It would be unfair, they say, to have to pay the income taxes levied by Montgomery County or, for that matter, by the states of Maryland and Virginia and the District of Columbia.

However, they do pay personal property and real estate taxes levied in their respective Washington-area jurisdictions.

The Montgomery County tax was levied only for the last nine months of 1966. It was to be paid by "all residents." No other county in this immediate area yet levies an income tax.

Ashbrook says he filed a Montgomery County tax return, but sent no check. He estimates as many as three-quarters of his colleagues who live in the county have not even filed a return.

much less paid the tax. Under the law, said Douglas Dayhoff, county finance director, congressmen "are liable. Where there has been no change in the law, I feel we do have to collect."

He says he will seek full taxes from members who come from states with no income taxes such as Ohio and seek to collect a percentage from congressmen from states where the income tax is less than Maryland's.

Ashbrook believes however that as an Ohio resident he is not liable for either the Montgomery County or Maryland tax.

Although Dahoff is unmoved there is no known effort among state officials in Maryland or Virginia or from District officials to force members to pay state or D. C. income taxes.
